MPHERSON LIAR, SAYS WALSH

Head of Irish Commission
Claims Statement of Chief
Secretary as False

Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the American Commission on Irish Independence, has sent a letter to the Hon. James P. McPherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in which he stated the point of personal veracity with the English official. The letter was dated July 2, 1919, and was received by Walsh on July 10. The letter was a reply to a letter from McPherson dated June 2, 1919, in which he had stated that the American Commission on Irish Independence had been established in 1918, and that it had been in existence since that time.

'Now's Time to Get the Money,' Says the Sugar Man

By International News Service.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 9.

"This is the time for us to get the money" and "Be not afraid to boost your prices as far as you can," were phrases in a letter to selling instructions alleged to have been sent by George W. Sheehan, president of the Central Sugar Company of Chicago, to salesmen of the local branch.

Sheehan and three of his employees were today awaiting trial after a hearing in which the letter played an important part. The men are charged with violating the Federal food act in receiving high prices for sugar.

EFFORT TO KEEP FOOD HUNTED

Federal Agents Seek Evidence of Conspiracy to Hold Vast Amounts in Freezers

The government searchlight today was turned on the cold storage plants of Boston and New England in connection with the country-wide hunt for evidence of conspiracy on the part of food producers to inflate the cost of the necessities of life by hoarding vast quantities of food in freezers.

Chief Justice R. K. Keeler of the Boston branch of Federal court today said he had received instructions from Washington to conduct a sweeping investigation of the cold storage plants in order to ascertain just how much foodstuff has been stacked up in the cold storage plants, and when certain commodities are held in reserve to jump the prices.

Chief Justice Keeler said his agency had not as yet in getting under way, but that at the very outset they encountered obstacles which were surprising in extent. He said that he had given instructions to agents in Concord, N. H., and Burlington, V., to conduct similar inquiries. His agents will thoroughly examine the cold storage plants of Massachusetts.

A complete inventory of the food in storage and the length of time it has been held in the freezers will be submitted to the United States district attorneys of this and other New England States.

2. Boston & Maine announced embargo on all freight for connections, except footpaths and perishables.
3. Boston & Maine will materially reduce its train schedules tomorrow. New Haven and Connecticut ferry train reductions beginning tomorrow. Boston & Albany warned that reductions might come Monday.
4. Boston & Maine powerhouse men quit.
5. Boston & Maine trackmen at Lowell vote not to quit.
6. Secretary Robert Henderson, New Haven's railroad men, say: "No change. The men are not going back."
7. R. M. Lowell, acting president railway department, A. F. of L., says at Washington that a small number of "extreme radicals" are delaying settlement. Railroad administration officials at Washington claim greater

ORIGINAL AND EXCLUSIVE PERFORMANCES

AT 5 P. M. THE AIRPLANE BATTLE between ships manned by expert American Aces—Lieut. Howard G. Brown, R. M. A., and Lieut. Wesley Smith, R. M. A. One airplane overcomes the other, as in war. Maneuvers used: The Immelman turn, the spiral climb, looping the loop, turning many times in succession, barrel roll, the hair-raising tail spin, nose dive, the shooting star and the grapevine twist. This is the best opportunity to see airplanes and their use ever offered to the public. Thousands of dollars have been expended for the best machines, to level and grade a landing field, to build hangar, to purchase searchlights, to light the landing ground for night flying.

NO SUCH EXTENSIVE PREPARATIONS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR FREE FLYING AT ANY OTHER PLACE.

AT 7 P. M. THE REAL DANGER FEAT—Parachute drop from airplane. Sergeant Daredevil Murphy defies death. Leaps from speeding airplane 3,000 feet high. Lieut. Robert J. Wilde, R. M. A., and Sergeant Murphy in an act that requires colossal nerve. Daredevil Murphy looks about as big as your little finger as he hangs from his huge umbrella. Be sure to see him jump.

AT 9:30 AIRPLANE RAID ON PARAGON PARK by Lieut. Mark C. Hogue, R. M. A. Realistic and original. A grand sight. Sensational, yet beautiful. The airship will drop fireworks, instead of bombs, on Paragon Park. First here and then there, unseen in the darkness, the aviator will drop these fireworks, lighting up the high heavens as they have never been lighted before.

AT THE PARK is heard the return fire from the anti-airplane guns, as the immense searchlight scrapes the sky and sights the raider. The aviator, then, with defiant impudence, lights brilliant flares on the wings of his machine and tails away in a blaze of glory. See these great demonstrations of the advance in aviation. The only true war acts possible to repeat.

Why the Railroad Men Ought to Return to Work

The international president of the striking railway employees has requested his men to return to their work—to vital to the public convenience and necessity.

The situation is roughly as follows: The men have waited since January 20 for a settlement of their wage demands and claim that the delays have been unnecessary. On the other hand, President Wilson says that the delays have been due to the fact that other demands having prior claim had to be settled and that the process of such settlements were not instantaneous.

The President, being mindful of the brief period to which public control is limited, felt that he could not permit the granting of increased wages which would affect the railroads for all time without the consent of Congress, which he has now practically obtained by the letter from Senator Cullum. Therefore, the President, in a communication to Mr. Hines, the Director-General of the E. R. R., says that he will take up the question of wages immediately but says further that the difficulty in the way of an immediate settlement is that the men have repudiated the authority of their own officers to negotiate the settlement and have struck without the approval of these officers.

Under these circumstances the international president of the striking employees has urged the men to return to work pending negotiations.

Is there any doubt in the world that the men ought to take the advice of their own leader. He knows, of course, the situation better than they do. A majority of the American people have always been instinctively sympathetic with workmen demanding and striking for higher wages and better labor conditions. But this sympathy has gone to them as the under dogs, as those who have not been given a square deal.

The American told the employee of the Boston Elevated Railway recently, it is very easy to destroy this public prejudice in favor of striking workmen by arbitrary and selfish conduct which does not take into consideration the interests which the public have in the continuance of so important a service as that performed by our public service corporations.

It is a friend of labor that the American urges them to use the power of the strike sparingly and never until every other recourse has been exhausted and until the workmen who propose to strike are perfectly clear that the public will sympathize with them and will bear cheerfully the great public inconvenience which the strike will cause.

While the American is not at all certain that the men are not justified in claiming that the delays in the settlement of their demands have been unnecessary, yet that fact alone will not justify this strike and its attending serious public inconveniences if there is yet remaining any hopeful untired means of settlement. While there remains a reasonable hope of such a settlement no strike is justified and the opinion of the president of their own organization and that of the President of the United States that such a settlement can be reached without a strike ought to make the hope of it seem at least reasonable.

Attend Meeting on Common Tomorrow

Last Summer an experiment was tried with great success on the Common. That experiment was the holding of Open Forum Meetings there.

At one of these meetings President Taft addressed more than 1000 people and we had the splendid democratic spectacle of a former President of the United States submitting to questions addressed to him in the crowd.

The Summer experiment has been resumed. The first meeting will be addressed by Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor. Tomorrow the Rev. John Haynes Holmes of New York will speak on "The Folly of Violence as a Weapon of Political and Industrial Reform."

If there is anything that the Rev. Mr. Holmes can say to promote the idea that violence in America will not democratic FORMS of government is unnecessary and reactionary, we hope that as many people as possible will come to hear him.

Our citizens who are righteously dissatisfied with the results of our government should be taught that the one way to fail in their efforts to reform the government is to employ unlawful violence. Leave that evil weapon to those who are resisting righteous reform. They will use it, because they have the power to use it and because they have already used it. Their favorite game of reform is to use violence against reformers and then through their usual control of the newspapers and other avenues of publicity to claim that they acted on the defensive, just as the Kaiser and the German military caste pretended to their people that they were acting on the defensive.

All reformers should remember that in all the great movements for better conditions the reactionary forces try their best to invite the reformers to violence so that they may lose public sympathy and public confidence, and so that the reactionaries who usually control the local government and the military equipment will have an excuse to employ force against the reformers.

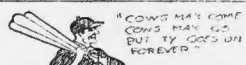

For example, the Lawrence strike would not have been won if the three brave clergymen who led it had not successfully urged the workers not to yield to all their provocations to violence. These clergymen submitted to violence against their own persons patiently and forbearingly, because they had the understanding to appreciate that not to have turned the enemy the other cheek was to have played the enemy's game. One of these clergymen actually went with his clothes torn and his face bloody from an unprovoked attack to a meeting of the workmen excited almost beyond control by the untimely use of the very weapons he had argued with them earlier to try to turn over on their own a violent retaliation. The result of the peaceful attack by the Minister whom they acknowledged, has been a result in an extreme cordial between the workmen and his employers, for we understand that several of the employees have asked their employers to cooperate with them in establishing some kind of an understanding.

Let everybody who can attend the meeting on the Common tomorrow, Sunday, August 10th, at the Parkman Bandstand, at 11:30 in the afternoon, if it is pleasant. If it rains the meeting will be held at the Old South Meeting House, corner of Milk and Washington streets.

More Truth Than Poetry

Some People Never Quit

ANOTHER wears the crown that Willard wore. They say that Bernard Shaw has lost his punch. From Kipling we get snappy stuff no more. There's mildew on the Holmsworth lunch; William Waldorf Astor buys Coronets no more, and sighs. In the deepening seclusion he deserves. But our old friend Tyrone Gilds. Can he found right on the job. With a liking for the latest pitcher's curves.

OLD Hindenburg's no longer on the line.

Orlando had to pack his bag and go. Joe Cannon may be feeling fit and free. But he's not the old amusing "Uncle Joe". Death has called John Barleycorn. And the friends of Bryan mourn. For the chances that he never may reclaim. But the gentlemen who nick. The consequence to the quick. Still, with all their former cunning, play the game.

KERENSKY'S lost the laurels from his brow.

Duke Nicholas is gone, the Lord knows where. Even Hoover isn't often heard from now. "Tippencroft's" never sung. And nobody, old or young. Ever asks where Shaw receives his mail today. But the swindlers and the quacks. Climb upon our aching backs. And we hear them in the old familiar way.

THE NEXT AERIAL ACHIEVEMENT

Professors will still be plentiful. About 1,300,000 planes are expected to leave this country and return to their native lands, but their going is not likely to be of any benefit to the Harvard professors who complain that they are scarier than their uniform get.

A PILE WITH NO EXCEPTION

The man who works the hardest may not draw the biggest pay. The woman who is prudent may have little common sense. The man who talks the loudest may not have the most to say. But the predestinate girl may always eat at some old man's expense.

YE TOWNE GOSSIP

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—The other day I wrote a letter to my mother. She lives in a little box of a village in Vermont, and I write to her every day. I mailed this letter July 20 and she didn't get it until the 25th. When she did get it there was a postmarked message on the back which said:

"I found this letter in a bread box at the bakery."
"FRANK INGALLS, Baker."
Now, this was all right, because the next time my mother doesn't get a letter from me she won't think I am sick and sorry. She'll just say: "Oh, it's probably up at the bakery!" and wait till it comes. But there is an army captain out West who is very, very angry because I didn't answer a letter from him, which I really never got. He yet suppose if you printed the letter all the Boston bakers would look through their bread boxes for the letter? Because I'd very much like to make my peace with the captain. Respectfully, SCOTCH.

MY DEAR Scotch,
HERE'S your letter.
AND I hope all the bakers.
WILL LOOK through their breads.
AND FIND your letter.
FROM the army captain.
AND YOU'LL answer the letter.
AND SARRY the captain.
BUT about the letter.
YOU WROTE your number.
I WANT to tell you.
WHAT HAPPENED to me.
WHEN I went to the store.
WHERE the postoffice is.
IN our little village.
AND GOT my mail.
AND STARTED back home.
AND MET a couple of fellows.
WHO LIVE near me.
WHO WERE sitting down.
BY the side of the road.
AND I sat down.
AND WE started talking.
ABOUT all sorts of things.
AND WE talked about writing.
AND DIFFERENT things.
AND I showed them mine.
AND WE got to writing.
AND FOOLED around.
FOR NEARLY an hour.
AND THEN we went on.
AND WHEN I got home.
I'D LOST all my mail.
AND WENT back to find it.

AND IT wasn't there.
AND THE very next morning.
THE POSTMASTER had it.
TIED UP with a string.
AND WRITTEN on it:
"I FOUND this mail.
ON the road to the lake."
SIGNED, "WATSON, the Butcher."
AND I've been thinking.
THAT, MAYBE your number.
GOT YOUR letter all right.
AND GOING home.
MET A couple of women.
AND STARTED to write.
AND LOST your letter.
AND FORGOT about it.
AND SOMEBODY found it.
AND PUT it in the bread box.
BY MISTAKE for the mail box.
AND ANYWAY.
IF YOU sent your captain.
I HOPE you got him.

"Ireland Only White Community Left Under Yoke"

So declares ERSKINE CHILDERS, English author and member of Parliament, in a dramatic article in tomorrow's Sunday Advertiser. The position of Ireland is pivotal, he makes clear, and both for Ireland's own sake and for the sake of RIGHT in world affairs and politics generally, he demands a FAIR DEAL FOR IRELAND. "THE SECRET DOOR," DEAR VANCE, is now a novel story tomorrow. "THE WORKERS WILL RULE THE WORLD," is the conclusion of LINDA BISSOLATI, Italian miniaturist and model, in the Sunday Advertiser. Who knows what THE BEST WAY TO BEAT BOLESHIVISM, SENATOR MEDILL MCELROY, MIAMI tells us, in his opinion, the government should adopt THE HIGHEST SYSTEM. And many other interesting and interesting features.

ERSKINE CHILDERS, English author, member of Parliament and officer of the British Army in France, in an excellent article in tomorrow's Sunday Advertiser, declares that the League of Nations is divided by the English attitude in Ireland. "The position of the English-speaking races of the world are pivoted by this stubborn denial of freedom to unhappy Eria," he says further. "Ireland is coming to occupy a strange position in the world; the most hopeful or the most hopeless, according to our estimate of tendencies. In the midst of the eternal conflict between right and might she stands a lonely symbolic figure, tormented, isolated, the prize of contending principles, governed at this moment like Belgium under Prussia, by a nation which went to war to free Belgium from Prussia. She is the ONLY WHITE COMMUNITY ON THE GLOBE LEFT BENEATH THE OP-PRRESSOR'S YOKE. Her position is pivotal—at this time of crisis in the world's affairs the decision of this question will either transform and purify politics and give a powerful forward impetus to right, first in the British Empire and then in the world, or the shameful evidence of eternal failure in Ireland will strengthen the forces of evil abroad in the world."

Suppose you had everything in the world to live for and every faculty for keenly enjoying every means of happiness, and suddenly you should be warned that you were about to become hopelessly blind—or that there was only one chance in the world, and it a slim one, for you to escape that calamity? Suppose you had a beautiful young wife whom you loved more than yourself, a bright, gay young creature whom you wished always to dwell in the sunshine of life? What would you feel your duty to her to be? To let her face this problem, tell it his duty to shield her even from knowledge of what threatened—to let her be happy as long as she could. But she did not know and could not understand; she read his silence and gloominess, which was caused by suffering, as coldness to her; and he lost not only the sympathy and tenderness she would otherwise have lavished upon him, but he lost her trust, and almost lost her love. Another man entered the scene and persuaded her that there was another woman; jealousy did the rest. . . . But to tell more would be to divulge too much of the intricacy of plot of "THE SECRET DOOR." DEARIE VANCE's new serial which begins tomorrow. A novel of the Bling Glen type—a fascinating story of love and intrigue in fashionable society; a brilliant addition to the long list of remarkable stories the Sunday Advertiser has published in generous instalments.

"THE WORKERS WILL RULE THE WORLD!" That is not Bolshevist propaganda, nor I. W. W. talk; it is a serious statement by a well-known and highly-approved statesman, Leonida Biscolati, minister in various Italian Cabinets, who resigned from the late Orlando government because he disagreed with the Italian Minister Bonino on the Adriatic claims of Italy. It is an authority on social questions, the leader of the moderate Socialists of Italy, an advocate of the League of Nations and a friend of President Wilson. But radical though he is not, he is the handwriting on the wall, and he says that the day of the old order is done—from now on, "in every country plutocratic rule must cease; its grip on public affairs must relax in order to make room in the ranks of the leaders for the representatives of the 'producers'." The working masses of today are naturally instinctively becoming a vast world-wide association of "reasonable, evolutionary Socialists." By giving them the greater share of the government of the various countries they will naturally come to the conclusion that violence is unnecessary, because they can attain their rights by legal means. BOLSHEVISM WILL BE DEAD as soon as the present governing classes understand this problem."

This country is facing a grave financial situation, declares SENATOR MEDILL MCELROY. "It will become threatening if the hour of reform is postponed, or if the measure of reform be inadequate. The responsibility is not only with Congress, but with the country." And he sees the ADOPTION OF THE BUDGET SYSTEM as the solution of the problem. During twenty years preceding the war, he points out, public expenditure increased out of all proportion to the increase in population and wealth. "Then along came the war and found us as completely unprepared financially as in a military way. Without any system, or forethought or planning whatsoever, we appropriated billions, voted bond issues and levied taxes . . . but failed to make any provision for the future, when the bond issues must be paid off and the expenses of the government enhanced ten-fold by the war. must be met. We indulged in a venal financial orgy. Now we must clean up the bill, plan for the future and devise some scheme of paying off the national debt."

To the long list of men and things that "WON THE WAR, AND TIE THE KNOTS." But these are not the "Big Five" of the Beef Trust. Far otherwise. The latter doubtless did their bit (a good many of us think they have more than done "a bit"—to us), but those are the experts in packing electrical and other equipment and commodities for every known quarter of the globe where allied help was needed to win the victory. With the packers, success would have been far more difficult, says Charles M. Eiply, continuing his interesting series on inventions that were significantly successful in helping win the war.
